

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL	Jean Grimshaw	1
ARTICLES
Lucy Irigaray and the Female Imaginary: Speaking as a Woman	Margaret Whitford	3
Dialectical Perception: A Synthesis of Lenin and Bogdanov	Edmond Wright	9
Back to Utopia: Anthony Giddens and Modern Social Theory	Ian Craib	17
The Narration of an Unhappy Consciousness: Lukács, Marxism, the Novel, and Beyond	Keith Ansell-Pearson	22
COMMENT
A New Marxist Paradigm?	Joseph McCarney	29
REVIEWS
Reconstructing Structural Marxism	Howard Feather	32
Criticism and Crisis	Stuart Sim	36
Matters of Life and Death	David Lamb	38
Beyond Liberal Puralism	Gregor McLennan	40
Talking Dirty	Jeffrey Weeks	41
SHORTER REVIEWS		42

INDEX OF OUR FIRST TEN YEARS

In RP31 there appeared a cumulative index of articles, reviews and other pieces published in Radical Philosophy from issue No.1 to issue No.30. Further copies are available, free of charge, for those considering purchasing back numbers.

Please write to: Jean Grimshaw, Department of Humanities, Bristol Polytechnic, Oldbury Court Road, Bristol BS16 2JP

RADICAL PHILOSOPHY GROUP

The Radical Philosophy Group grew out of a convergence of two currents which had been largely formed by the student movement of the 1960s - on the one hand, discontent, especially among students, with the sterile and complacent philosophy taught in British universities and colleges; on the other hand, a revival of interest in the theoretical work of the left and a recognition of the need to confront the ideology enshrined in orthodox academic disciplines. The Radical Philosophy Group has always contended that these two problems can be tackled together - that philosophical inquiry into fundamental issues must lead to the exposure of conservatism masquerading as formal reason.

Academic philosophy in this country has generally accepted and defended the frame of reference of the dominant bourgeois culture. This culture is supported and mirrored by the élitist isolation, the internal hierarchies and demarcations, of academic institutions. The Radical Philosophy Group therefore works for reforms in courses and assessments for the enlargement of students' control over their education, for the breaking down of barriers between philosophy and other disciplines and between academic institutions and the outside world.

The Group has held numerous conferences, and local groups have been formed which have organised meetings and agitated on local issues. Radical Philosophy is the magazine of the Radical Philosophy Group, and has come out three times a year since January 1972. It aims to criticise the current state of philosophy in the English-speaking world and to encourage philosophical discussion on the left. It welcomes any contributions which will serve these aims.